Friday Evening.

In the evening a Male quartet sang two selections and Rev. Carl conducted devotional services by reading the 6th chapter of Daniel.

Next came the address of the evening by Mrs. Cora E. Seberry national lecturer. Too much cannot be said of this highly gifted orator. She is simply grand, and any one must feel honored to be allowed the privilege of listening to so much wit and wisdom condensed in such a short time. Mrs. Seberry condemned the liquor traffic in vigorous language.

The primary election will be held Tuesday, September 16th.

There will be two separate tickets to be voted at the primaries—the non-partisan judiciary ticket and the partisan ballot on which candidates for county, borough and township offices will have their names.

If a voter is enrolled he can vote both tickets, but if he is not enrolled he can vote only the non-partisan judge ballot.

Candidates for the judiciary are not identified by party titles, hence the voter is not voting against his own party by voting for any of the judicial candidates, no matter who that candidate may be.

Voting for a candidate for judge does not bind the voter to anything more than his act at the primaries, and does not affect his standing as a Washington, Republican or Democratic voter.

The voter who supports a judicial candidate at the primaries cannot be deprived of his right to vote for his own party candidates at the November election.

Party lines are not drawn in the non-partisan contest for judicial nominations, and the voter may vote for any of the judicial candidates without regarding himself unfaithful to the political party of his choice.

"The Last Rose of Summer" was beautifully sung by Miss Mary Mitchell.

Rev. Salter made offering address in which he reached the hearts and purses of the people.

Miss Marian Bigler delighted the audience by singing the W. C. T. U. soul-stirring song "Victory."

Benediction by the Rev. Mr. Salter closed the meeting and the 1913 convention of the W. C. T. U. passed into history as one of the most interesting and profitable ever held by the county union.

Franks of Memory.

As to franks of memory, Mark Twain has told us of the pilot who knew every bend, creek, current and shallow in the Mississippi river throughout its whole mighty length but could not remember what he had had for breakfast. Probably most memories are like that. One man I know has a memory that apparently collects only figures. He can always remember your age, even if he forgets your name. He will memorize easily the times of all the trains to a given place, but he generally forgets the platforms from which they start. Heel off to him a column of statistics, and he will recite them again to you a month later without a mistake, having in the meantime forgotten everything else about you. But then he is a born mathematician. Evidently memory is largely a question of sympathy. We remember the things we are really interested in.—London Chronicle.

Sheraton's Influence.

Thomas Sheraton, although a cabinetmaker by trade, it is quite probable during his life in London, did not actually produce any furniture, as his time was too much taken up by his occupation as Baptist preacher, tractarian, drawing master, designer and publisher to bestow any attention on the manufacture or superintendence of cabinet work. His "Cabinetmaker and Upholsterer's Drawing Book" was published first in 1791 and again in 1793 and 1802. He was possessed of keen critical insight in matters pertaining to high class cabinetmaking, combined with an excellent sense of proportion, sound judgment and purity of taste, and his influence on the style of furniture in the latter part of the eighteenth century was exercised through his designs and criticisms, which had no little weight with the cabinetmakers of his day.—Suburban Life Magazine

This wonderful display of wonderful work has never been shown in Clearfield before. You will miss it, if you miss it, this week only at, Sheeder's.

Prompt Lesson.

Some years ago there was in a certain town a judge whose ideas of the majesty of the law at the time of his accession to office were unbounded, and his sense of his own importance as the representative of justice was also great. At one time two persons quarreled in the judge's presence. One man struck the other, and the judge immediately ordered his arrest on a charge of assault and battery.

Instantly the judge, who was a short, stout man, was on his feet, crimson faced and puffing with indignation.

"What do you mean?" he demanded of the prisoner without any preamble. "What do you mean by saying that, when I saw you and had you arrested? I fine you $100 for breach of peace and another $100 for contempt of court, sir I reckon," said the judge, his nostrils dilating with rage and injured dignity. "I reckon that'll teach folks to be careful how they call this court a liar."

Not a Thunder Expert.

The masterful manner in which some people evade an issue was mentioned at a recent dinner when this one was recalled by a naval official.

"In New Orleans, one night," the officer said, "there was a man on the stage who offered to answer by mental arithmetic any question that might be asked by the audience. Just so long as the questioner remained in the expected channel the sailing was easy, but finally one man got beyond the bearings.

"If you please, sir," said the man rising from his seat, "How far off can you hear thunder?"

"I can't tell you, sir," was the prompt response of the wonder on the stage.

"You can't tell me?" responded the fan. "Why, I thought—"

"Not about thunder," replied the stage party, doing a quick piece of dodging. "You see, I am a lightning calculator!"—Washington Post.

MRS. HUFF DIES OF HER WOUNDS

HER STATEMENT WAS TAKEN

If Convicted of Murder in the First Degree Huff Will be the First to be Electrocuted for the Crime Under a Recent Law—Said to Have Been Drinking.

Frank Huff, who shot his wife at Penfield last Tuesday will have to stand trial for murder his wife dying in the DuBois hospital Friday evening at 3 20 o'clock as the result of the wounds she received at the time of the shooting. From the first there was not the least chance of the woman recovering, as two bullets had entered her body and one had struck her in the head.

Another Murder Trial.

The death of Mrs. Huff will place her husband in jeopardy of his life. The date of his trial will be fixed by the court. The witnesses to the crime and the deposition of the woman upon her deathbed are likely to result in the conviction of Huff of murder in the first degree, and if this be the verdict and the higher courts and the board of pardons refuse to interfere Huff will be executed.

May be First For Chair.

Should Huff be convicted of murder in the first degree he would be the first murderer in Clearfield county to occupy the electric chair in the new penitentiary at Bellefonte, provided for by a recent act of the legislature.

It is probable that the Arabian who shot and killed a countryman at Sterling some weeks ago will escape with a verdict of manslaughter, in which event he will be given a penitentiary sentence.

Mrs. Huff a Good Woman.

Mrs. Huff, the victim of the Penfield shooting, is said to have been a good woman. Not a word was heard from her in condemnation of her husband after he had shot her. She made her ante-mortem statement on Wednesday, giving the facts of the case but making no comments which might be construed as blame for her husband.

Huff, on the other hand has a bad reputation in the community, it being alleged that he had been drinking for several months and refused to work to maintain the family.

Old Settlers' Picnic.

The picnic of the old settlers held near Osceola Thursday, was a very enjoyable affair and was attended by a large number of people, who indulged in sports of all kinds and exchanged reminiscences of the early days of Clearfield county.

EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS AT GLEN RICHEY

Tabernacle to be Built and Vigorous Campaign Waged

Glen Richey is to be the center of an evangelistic campaign of such proportions as will attract to that town workers in the Christian cause from all over this section of the county. This campaign will be in charge of the Union Evangelical association recently organized, and of which James Rowles is chairman.

The association will erect a large tabernacle at Glen Richey in which the first meetings will be held next week. It is expected that these meetings will equal in interest and exceed in results the campaign recently conducted at Curwensville.

Rev. W. J. Walters, of the P. M. church.

Rev. T. S. Berry, of the Presbyterian church.

Among those from a distance who will aid in this work are W. D. Hamilton, chorister, Sabatha, Kansas, and J. J. Leonard, of Illinois.

TWO PRIZE ORATIONS.

Generation after generation of our American schoolboys have declaimed "Spartacus to the Gladiators" or "Ragulus to the Carthaginians" and probably never stopped to wonder what stenographer among the ancients took down these celebrated remarks. As a matter of fact, both were the work of a New England clergyman, Elijah Kellogg. "Spartacus" was written while he was a young theological student at Andover in 1842 for the rhetorical exercises of his class. "Ragulus" was written three years later for a fellow student to speak in a prize competition.

What college youth of these days could write such forceful orations? These have never been surpassed, and in some schools it has become necessary to bar them from the list at prize speaking competitions, so invariably do they carry off the prizes.

Of all the work of Elijah Kellogg these alone remain known. Yet he wrote thirty wholesome books for boys, some of them tales of the woods and some of school, and was for years an eloquent pastor at the Seaman's church in Boston. He might have become a Talmage or a Beecher or a Brooks and gained fame in a more fashionable pulpit, but clung to the life work he had chosen.—Detroit Free Press

CURIOUS ALASKAN BIRDS.

Male Ptarmigan Wee in Two Tongues and Bully Their Mates.

The ptarmigan, an Alaskan bird, is a wonderful imitator of man. If Belmont Browne, who contributes an article on Alaskan game to Outing, is to be believed. To begin with, the author finds that the ptarmigan is a linguist of no mean ability. The male does his wooing in mixed French and English: "A pleasing side of their mating is the habit of the males of jarring their call while on the wing. They commence with a guttural cackle, which they utter faster and faster until they alight, when they end their song by repeating slowly a call that sounds like god-up, god-up, god-up, god-up or parles vous? parles vous? parles vous? as they strut proudly about."

In addition to singing in two languages, the ptarmigan conducts his personal and domestic affairs in approved fashion. Could not the following observation apply to human beings as well as to this remarkable bird: "The males fight constantly, and the hens seem to enjoy these battles and sit about clucking among themselves. "But once a hen has decided on a mate she comes into her own share of troubles and is beaten and bullied by the mate she has promised to love and obey."

Inexpensive Manse.

"When I got the order to design a big wholesale house for a firm that has stores in six cities I was elated," said an architect. "I'll plan a building that is bound to be satisfactory," I said to myself, "and then they will give me the commission for those new stores they expect to put up in those other five cities."

"Well, I did turn out a splendid store, a store that was admired by everybody in the wholesale trade. My patrons were pleased, too, but instead of giving me an order for those other buildings they simply used the same place over again and built all their houses alike. That's what I call playing a low down trick on a fellow."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Thieves and Their Feet.

A city missionary whose work brings him in contact with thieves was interested in their frequent mention of a certain chiropodist whom they had patronized.

"I shouldn't think," said the missionary, "that men of your calling would have either the time or the money to fool away on chiropodists."

"We're just the kind that need to fool away time and money on them," one ex-burglar explained. "Of all persons on earth men in our line can least afford to be made nervous by bad feet. Creeping around in a strange place in the dark is ticklish business at the best. It requires all things sound feet and comfortable shoes. To kick a corn or by against a rocking chair or the of a bureau might knock the man out of a job of the season into a cell."—New York Times.

Exercise and Health.

There was a bank clerk who saw the men of his own age losing health year by year through overwork, indoor sedentary life and lack of daily exercise. He saw them growing yellow and flabby and unfit and the spectacle didn't attract him. He decided that success had better come late or even not at all rather than at the price of a ruined body. Health became to him the choicest of the merces, the best of life's commodities. Up and away the person in health can dash to another job, to another clime, master of his fate. Ill health is a chain that ties to the dreariness of what is nearest at hand. After a youth of weakness and fatigue the man is happy in finding that an hour of exercise a day changed the aspect of the outer world and removed him for all time from the ranks of the unfit.—Collier's.

Prompt Lesson.

Some years ago there was in a certain town a judge whose ideas of the majesty of the law at the time of his accession to office were unbounded, and his sense of his own importance as the representative of justice was also great. At one time two persons quarreled in the judge's presence. One man struck the other, and the judge immediately ordered his arrest on a charge of assault and battery.

Instantly the judge, who was a short, stout man, was on his feet, crimson faced and puffing with indignation. "What do you mean?" he demanded of the prisoner without any preamble. "What do you mean by saying that, when I saw you and had you arrested? I fine you $100 for breach of peace and another $100 for contempt of court, sir I reckon," said the judge, his nostrils dilating with rage and injured dignity. "I reckon that'll teach folks to be careful how they call this court a liar."

Not a Thunder Expert.

The masterful manner in which some people evade an issue was mentioned at a recent dinner when this one was recalled by a naval official.

"In New Orleans, one night," the officer said, "there was a man on the stage who offered to answer by mental arithmetic any question that might be asked by the audience. Just so long as the questioner remained in the expected channel the sailing was easy, but finally one man got beyond the bearings.

"If you please, sir," said the man rising from his seat, "How far off can you hear thunder?"

"I can't tell you, sir," was the prompt response of the wonder on the stage.

"You can't tell me?" responded the fan. "Why, I thought—"

"Not about thunder," replied the stage party, doing a quick piece of dodging. "You see, I am a lightning calculator!"—Washington Post.

MRS. HUFF DIES OF HER WOUNDS

HER STATEMENT WAS TAKEN

If Convicted of Murder in the First Degree Huff Will be the First to be Electrocuted for the Crime Under a Recent Law—Said to Have Been Drinking.

Frank Huff, who shot his wife at Penfield last Tuesday will have to stand trial for murder his wife dying in the DuBois hospital Friday evening at 3 20 o'clock as the result of the wounds she received at the time of the shooting. From the first there was not the least chance of the woman recovering, as two bullets had entered her body and one had struck her in the head.

Another Murder Trial.

The death of Mrs. Huff will place her husband in jeopardy of his life. The date of his trial will be fixed by the court. The witnesses to the crime and the deposition of the woman upon her deathbed are likely to result in the conviction of Huff of murder in the first degree, and if this be the verdict and the higher courts and the board of pardons refuse to interfere Huff will be executed.

May be First For Chair.

Should Huff be convicted of murder in the first degree he would be the first murderer in Clearfield county to occupy the electric chair in the new penitentiary at Bellefonte, provided for by a recent act of the legislature.

It is probable that the Arabian who shot and killed a countryman at Sterling some weeks ago will escape with a verdict of manslaughter, in which event he will be given a penitentiary sentence.

Mrs. Huff a Good Woman.

Mrs. Huff, the victim of the Penfield shooting, is said to have been a good woman. Not a word was heard from her in condemnation of her husband after he had shot her. She made her ante-mortem statement on Wednesday, giving the facts of the case but making no comments which might be construed as blame for her husband.

Huff, on the other hand has a bad reputation in the community, it being alleged that he had been drinking for several months and refused to work to maintain the family.

Old Settlers' Picnic.

The picnic of the old settlers held near Osceola Thursday, was a very enjoyable affair and was attended by a large number of people, who indulged in sports of all kinds and exchanged reminiscences of the early days of Clearfield county.

EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS AT GLEN RICHEY

Tabernacle to be Built and Vigorous Campaign Waged

Glen Richey is to be the center of an evangelistic campaign of such proportions as will attract to that town workers in the Christian cause from all over this section of the county. This campaign will be in charge of the Union Evangelical association recently organized, and of which James Rowles is chairman.

The association will erect a large tabernacle at Glen Richey in which the first meetings will be held next week. It is expected that these meetings will equal in interest and excited in results the campaign recently conducted at Curwensville.

Rev. W. J. Walters, of the P. M. church.

Rev. T. S. Berry, of the Presbyterian church.

Rev. J. H. Cook of the Baptist church.

Rev. O. B. Poulson, of the Methodist church.

Among those from a distance who will aid in this work are W. D. Hamilton, chorister, Sabatha, Kansas, and J. J. Leonard, of Illinois.

TWO PRIZE ORATIONS.

Generation after generation of our American schoolboys have declaimed "Spartacus to the Gladiators" or "Ragulus to the Carthaginians" and probably never stopped to wonder what stenographer among the ancients took down these celebrated remarks. As a matter of fact, both were the work of a New England clergyman, Elijah Kellogg. "Spartacus" was written while he was a young theological student at Andover in 1842 for the rhetorical exercises of his class. "Ragulus" was written three years later for a fellow student to speak in a prize competition.

What college youth of these days could write such forceful orations? These have never been surpassed, and in some schools it has become necessary to bar them from the list at prize speaking competitions, so invariably do they carry off the prizes.

Of all the work of Elijah Kellogg these alone remain known. Yet he wrote thirty wholesome books for boys, some of them tales of the woods and some of school, and was for years an eloquent pastor at the Seaman's church in Boston. He might have become a Talmage or a Beecher or a Brooks and gained fame in a more fashionable pulpit, but clung to the life work he had chosen.—Detroit Free Press

CURIOUS ALASKAN BIRDS.

The ptarmigan, an Alaskan bird, is a wonderful imitator of man. If Belmont Browne, who contributes an article on Alaskan game to Outing, is to be believed. To begin with, the author finds that the ptarmigan is a linguist of no mean ability. The male does his wooing in mixed French and English: "A pleasing side of their mating is the habit of the males of jarring their call while on the wing. They commence with a guttural cackle, which they utter faster and faster until they alight, when they end their song by repeating slowly a call that sounds like god-up, god-up, god-up, god-up or parles vous? parles vous? parles vous? as they strut proudly about."

In addition to singing in two languages, the ptarmigan conducts his personal and domestic affairs in approved fashion. Could not the following observation apply to human beings as well as to this remarkable bird: "The males fight constantly, and the hens seem to enjoy these battles and sit about clucking among themselves. "But once a hen has decided on a mate she comes into her own share of troubles and is beaten and bullied by the mate she has promised to love and obey."

Inexpensive Manse.

"When I got the order to design a big wholesome house for a firm that has stores in six cities I was elated," said an architect. "I'll plan a building that is bound to be satisfactory," I said to myself, "and then they will give me the commission for those new stores they expect to put up in those other five cities."

"Well, I did turn out a splendid store, a store that was admired by everybody in the wholesale trade. My patrons were pleased, too, but instead of giving me an order for those other buildings they simply used the same place over again and built all their houses alike. That's what I call playing a low down trick on a fellow."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Thieves and Their Feet.

A city missionary whose work brings him in contact with thieves was interested in their frequent mention of a certain chiropodist whom they had patronized.

"I shouldn't think," said the missionary, "that men of your calling would have either the time or the money to fool away on chiropodists."

"We're just the kind that need to fool away time and money on them," one ex-burglar explained. "Of all persons on earth men in our line can least afford to be made nervous by bad feet. Creeping around in a strange place in the dark is ticklish business at the best. It requires all things sound feet and comfortable shoes. To kick a corn or to feel a burning shoe is a nuisance. A bureau might knock the table job of the season into a cocked hat."—New York Times.

Exercise and Health.

There was a bank clerk who saw the men of his own age losing health year by year through overwork, indoor sedentary life and lack of daily exercise. He saw them growing yellow and flabby and unfit and the spectacle didn't attract him. He decided that success had better come late or even not at all rather than at the price of a ruined body. Health became to him the choicest of the merces, the best of life's commodities. Up and away the person in health can dash to another job, to another clime, master of his fate. Ill health is a chain that ties to the dreariness of what is nearest at hand. After a youth of weakness and fatigue the man is happy in finding that an hour of exercise a day changed the aspect of the outer world and removed him for all time from the ranks of the unfit.—Collier's.

Good evening! Have you secured your hunter's license?

NOT SUPERSTITIOUS.

Hunters are not superstitious as a rule. They do not believe in signs and tokens. There was no hesitancy on the part of David F. Mann, of Clearfield to accept hunter's license Number 13 from the county treasurer, nor did Guy Bickford, of Clearfield, object to pocketing Number 23 when it was prepared for him. Hunters do not expect any worse luck than missing a deer or being arrested for killing a buck without the regulation sized horns.

License 13 may be just as good as any other numbered permit to hunt, and Mr. Mann can expect nothing worse than to hear some of his companions croak about the hoodoo. We look for him to go out hunting on the 13th, to walk thirteen miles, to fall over rocks thirteen times, to smoke thirteen pipes of tobacco, to spit in the face fifteen times by twigs, to say thirteen bad words when he misses a deer, to drink thirteen times out of a well, out of the spring, to be shot at thirteen times by other hunters who mistake him for deer, and to promise himself thirteen times that he will never go hunting again.

Mr. Bickford, with the 23 tag on his sleeve, is likely to hunt up to the 23d, to get lost twenty-three times, to shoot twenty-three times at a black stump in mistake for a bear, to see twenty-three stars when he bumps up against a tree, to wish twenty-three times that he was back at the tile works, to burn his fingers with his twenty-third match, to run across twenty-three other hunters in search of game, and to find twenty-three holes in his socks when he returns home.

ASSESSORS REPORT.

The assessors who were directed to enroll voters in Clearfield county have completed their work and made their returns to the county commissioners' office. As a general rule the enrollment was satisfactory, only a comparatively few refusing or failing to receive answers to questions asked the voters. The total enrollment of voters will be made known when the returns are gone over by somebody who has plenty of time and is not pressed for work.

It is probable that it will be found that there has been very little defection among the voters of any of the political parties, although not more than sixty per cent. of voters have been enrolled in this county. Statements that Washington voters refused to identify themselves are denied by the workers of that party, who aver that, barring a number of Washington voters who had not mastered the intricacies of the enrollment law, a fair percentage of these voters promptly answered the questions propounded to them by the assessors.

It is evidently the purpose of the old party workers to circulate false statements regarding the Washington party, but men who stood so staunchly by the candidates of that party last fall are not so easily discouraged and they will give a good account of themselves, both at the primaries this month and at the general election in November. The Washington voters have not forgotten the issue which called them into action last year, and they know the same issue exists today to rally the independent voter to the support of the people's cause.

AMUSEMENTS

"The Common Law," which will occupy the stage of the New Opera House on Monday night, relates to the radical theories entertained by a young girl who, in trying to save her lover from making family sacrifices for her sake, is willing to put aside the formalities of a marriage contract. Her firm conviction that love alone is the greatest virtue meets with a series of trials and endless tribulations in arriving at a happy outcome.

The play is said to be even more absorbing than the novel which, by the way, has had a most phenomenal vogue and continues to hold interest one of the boldest, yet less offensive, works of fiction ever written by a native author. Seats now on sale.

"Within The Law"

Few plays of recent years have been so enthusiastically praised by the exacting dramatic critics of New York and Chicago as Bayard Veiller's absorbing new human interest drama of modern metropolitan life, "Within the Law," which comes to the new Opera House Wednesday evening.

"This Play," says Acton Davies in the "New York Evening Sun" is set forward on the programme as a melodrama, and the man who writes the advertisements calls it a drama of the minute. It is both.

A Surprise For Her.

One of the greatest singers of France was returning from New York on a German liner. One evening, glancing at the program of the concert that was to be played at dinner, she saw a triumphal march celebrating the German victory of 1871.

She immediately conceived that the selection of such a piece was an insult to her and announced to a friend that she would express her disapproval at the proper time.

The captain noticed the great artist's agitation and glanced at the program to see what caused it; then, with a faint smile, he spoke to one of the waiters in a low tone.

At the moment when the German triumphal march was due to begin the French singer, who could not control her agitation, prepared to leave the table.

The first chord was played, the artist arose and stood, pale, agitated and amazed, while the officers and other passengers also got up and smiled sympathetically at her.

And the band played "The Marseillaise!"

The Psychological Moment.

Frances is only a little girl, but she has a quick mind and the gift of language that sometimes distinguishes children who associate much with their elders. The other day Frances came home to her mother with cheeks like roses and eyes like stars.

"Oh, mamma," she exclaimed, happily, "I've had the best luck this morning! I got downtown just at the psychological moment!"

"Did you, dear?" was mother's pleased inquiry. "And what happened?"

Said Frances solemnly: "I saw a parade."—Chicago Record-Herald.

Miss Ruth Law, sister of Rodman Law, the aeronaut, in a biplane, carrying Mrs. Richard R. She made a flight of about ten minutes' duration at an altitude of about 800 feet.

THEY SAW THE LAKE FLY.

An African Phenomenon That Looked Like a Waterspout.

Crossing Victoria Nyanza, Messrs. F. H. Melland and E. H. Cholmeley, the authors of "Through the Heart of Africa," saw a phenomenon which, although common on the lakes of central Africa, seems rare enough.

The chief engineer on coming down late to luncheon told us that he had seen a waterspout near by. As we had finished our meal we hurried up on deck to get a glimpse of it. We saw near the southern horizon a gray smoke-like column arising from the surface of the lake and expanding into what looked like a cloud above. Thinking that it must be the engineer's waterspout, we approached Captain Gray and Mr. Akeler, who were also intently observing it, and asked them if we were right in our conjecture.

"Waterspout!" said the skipper, with a smile. "Flee!"

"Flee?" we repeated and turned to Mr. Akeler in the hope of getting from him a more intelligible explanation.

"Quite true," he said. "Flee. You're not the lake fly before?"

"No," we retorted, "we haven't, and we didn't know that it flew."

Assuring us that neither he nor the skipper had any intention of deceiving us, Mr. Akeler explained that he referred to the insect known as the "lake fly" and not to any spasmodic frivolity on the part of the waters of Victoria Nyanza. The apparent waterspout was nothing more or less than a huge cloud composed of myriads of tiny flies. They sometimes rise from the surface of the lake in such dense columns as to obscure the light of the sun like a pillar of smoke.

She immediately conceived that the selection of such a piece was an insult to her and announced to a friend that she would express her disapproval at the proper time.

The captain noticed the great artist's agitation and glanced at the program to see what caused it; then, with a faint smile, he spoke to one of the waiters in a low tone.

At the moment when the German triumphal march was due to begin the French singer, who could not control her agitation, prepared to leave the table.

The first chord was played, the artist arose and stood, pale, agitated and amazed, while the officers and other passengers also got up and smiled sympathetically at her.

And the band played "The Marseillaise!"

The Psychological Moment.

Frances is only a little girl, but she has a quick mind and the gift of language that sometimes distinguishes children who associate much with their elders. The other day Frances came home to her mother with cheeks like roses and eyes like stars.

"Oh, mamma," she exclaimed, happily, "I've had the best luck this morning! I got downtown just at the psychological moment!"

"Did you, dear?" was mother's pleased inquiry. "And what happened?"

Said Frances solemnly: "I saw a parade."—Chicago Record-Herald.

MISS RUTH LAW.

Woman Aviator Who Made A Record Flight With Two Passengers at Garden City.

Miss Ruth Law, sister of Rodman Law, the aeronaut, in a biplane, carrying Mrs. Richard R. Sinclair and Miss Pearl McGrath, made what was probably a world's record flight for a woman aviator carrying passengers at Garden City, N. Y. She made a flight of about ten minutes' duration at an altitude of about 800 feet.

THEY SAW THE LAKE FLY.

An African Phenomenon That Looked Like a Waterspout.

Crossing Victoria Nyanza, Messrs. F. H. Melland and E. H. Cholmeley, the authors of "Through the Heart of Africa," saw a phenomenon which, although common on the lakes of central Africa, seems rare enough.

The chief engineer on coming down late to luncheon told us that he had seen a waterspout near by. As we had finished our meal we hurried up on deck to get a glimpse of it. We saw near the southern horizon a gray smoke-like column arising from the surface of the lake and expanding into what looked like a cloud above. Thinking that it must be the engineer's waterspout, we approached Captain Gray and Mr. Akeler, who were also intently observing it, and asked them if we were right in our conjecture.

"Files?" we repeated and turned to Mr. Akeler in the hope of getting from him a more intelligible explanation.

"Quite true," he said. "Files. You've seen the lake fly before?"

"No," we retorted, "we haven't, and we didn't know that it flew."

Assuring us that neither he nor the skipper had any intention of deceiving us, Mr. Akeler explained that he referred to the insect known as the "lake fly" and not to any spasmodic frivolity on the part of the waters of Victoria Nyanza. The apparent waterspout was nothing more or less than a huge cloud composed of myriads of tiny flies. They sometimes rise from the surface of the lake in such dense columns as to obscure the light of the sun like a pillar of smoke.

THOMAS W. HARDWICK.

Georgia Representative
Fights Administration's
Bill on Currency Reform.

© by American Press Association.

Representative Hardwick of Georgia, one of the conservative Democratic leaders in the house, has signified his intention of opposing the administration's currency measure and will join the radicals in their efforts to have the bill recommitted to the house banking and currency committee. Senator Owen, author of the bill, threw the house of representatives in an uproar by announcing that he was in no wise committed to the present measure. These announcements were regarded as serious setbacks to the administration's plans.

One Kind of Fame.

Authorities who have in charge some of England's ancient treasures try to discourage the habit of carrying initials on these relics. A fine of $15 was recently imposed on a man who had chipped his name in letters six inches high on one of the stones in the "Druids' Circle" near Keswick. Close to the giant stone globe at Swannage a special slab is provided for the harmless reception of the names of all who are addicted to this self advertisement. On popular Alpine summits it is customary for names to be left on cards in emptied wine bottles.

Varying the Old Story.

"I had him right up to the side of the boat—a beauty—the biggest one I ever hooked—was just getting my landing net under him—he gave a flop, and—"

"He gave a flop—cleared the landing net—and landed plumb in the boat."—Browning's Magazine.

EMERSON'S FAILING MEMORY.

He Was Conscious of It, but His Amiability Never Wavered.

I had as a fellow guest a man who had long been intimate with Emerson and whom the poet was very glad to see. Talking with me after tea in the library, Emerson said:

"I want to tell you about a friend in Germany. His name I cannot remember, and he moved to and fro uneasily in his effort to recall it. 'This friend with whom we have taken tea tonight, whose name also I cannot remember'—here again came a distressed look at the failure of his faculty—'I cannot remember his name either, but he can tell you of this German friend whose name I have also forgotten.'"

It was a sorrow to see the breaking down of a great spirit and his agitation as he was conscious of his waning power. And yet, so far as I could see, it was only the memory that was going. The intellectual strength was still apparent and the amiability of his spirit was perhaps even more manifest than in the years when he was in the full possession of himself.

This came out in little things. He was overanxious at the table lest the hospitality should come short, troubled about the supply of butter and apple sauce, and soon after I saw him on his knees on the hearth taking care that the fire should catch the wood to abate the evening coolness that was gathering in the room.—From "The Last Leaf" by J. K. Hosmer.

IT'S the little straws that shows which way the wind blows. It's the little courtesies we extend our depositors that show the spirit that prevails at the CLEARFIELD NATIONAL BANK. The small depositor is as welcome as the large one.

HOUSEHOLD accounts are objects of particular care with us and we hope the ladies will make full use of our facilities. There are writing and rest rooms solely for their use. There is a teller's window where they can get crisp new bills.

IT is unfortunately true that many women have no reliable source of advice in matters financial. When such is the case, our officers are ever ready to extend the most disinterested counsel. If you will but consult with us, we can relieve you of many cares and much anxiety.

THE CLEARFIELD NATIONAL is fully equipped financially and mentally to deal with any problems of banking finance, foreign exchange, investment, savings and safe deposit.

An Author Who Lived Too Soon.
That Swift's life was a failure in the eighteenth century and would have been a splendid success in the twentieth century no one, we think, will deny. Imagine what a fortune "Gulliver's Travels" and "A Tale of a Tub" would have brought their author in these days. Like the author of "Peter Pan" he would have made his plum and been made a baronet or an archbishop had he clung to holy orders, which he would probably have discarded. As it was, Swift died "like a rat in a hole," to use his own words.—London Saturday Review.

Very Annoying.

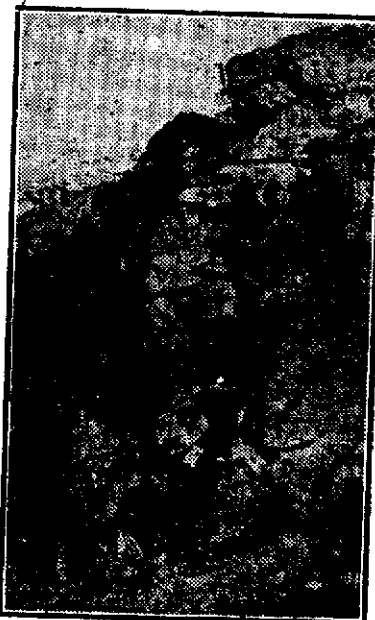

Mabelle—What makes the leading lady so grouchy? Estelle—She had counted on making a big hit with her divorce case this season, and just as she was about to bring proceedings her husband had to go and die. Mabelle (indignantly)—Now, isn't that just like a man?—Judge.

Explain a Mystery.

"It has always been my idea," remarked the man on the car, "that something jostled nature's elbow when she was pouring the seeds into the watermelon."—Toledo Blade.

MEXICANS IN ACTION.

This is the kind of warfare that is being carried on just across the border of the United States. Many bullets from the rifles of both sides of the fray fall on American soil and sometimes hit American citizens. It is to keep the belligerents on their own ground that Uncle Sam is maintaining a small army along the Mexican boundary.

THOMAS W. HARDWICK.

Georgia Representative
Fights Administration's
Bill on Currency Reform.

© by American Press Association.

Representative Hardwick of Georgia, one of the conservative Democratic leaders in the house, has signified his intention of opposing the administration's currency measure and will join the radicals in their efforts to have the bill recommitted to the house banking and currency committee. Senator Owen, author of the bill, threw the house of representatives in an uproar by announcing that he was in no wise committed to the present measure. These announcements were regarded as serious setbacks to the administration's plans.

One Kind of Fame.

Authorities who have in charge some of England's ancient treasures try to discourage the habit of carrying initials on these relics. A fine of $15 was recently imposed on a man who had chipped his name in letters six inches high on one of the stones in the "Druids' Circle" near Keswick. Close to the giant stone globe at Swannage a special slab is provided for the harmless reception of the names of all who are addicted to this self advertisement. On popular Alpine summits it is customary for names to be left on cards in emptied wine bottles.

Varying the Old Story.

"I had him right up to the side of the boat—a beauty—the biggest one I ever hooked—was just getting my landing net under him—he gave a flop, and—"

"Yes. I know the rest. He gave a flop—broke his hold—and away he went, and—"

"He gave a flop—cleared the landing net—and landed plumb in the boat."—Browning's Magazine.

EMERSON'S FAILING MEMORY.

He Was Conscious of It, but His Amiability Never Wavered.

I had as a fellow guest a man who had long been intimate with Emerson and whom the poet was very glad to see. Talking with me after tea in the library, Emerson said:

"I want to tell you about a friend in Germany. His name I cannot remember, and he moved to and fro uneasily in his effort to recall it. 'This friend with whom we have taken tea tonight, whose name also I cannot remember'—here again came a distressed look at the failure of his faculty—'I cannot remember his name either, but he can tell you of this German friend whose name I have also forgotten.'"

It was a sorrow to see the breaking down of a great spirit and his agitation as he was conscious of his waning power. And yet, so far as I could see, it was only the memory that was going. The intellectual strength was still apparent and the amiability of his spirit was perhaps even more manifest than in the years when he was in the full possession of himself.

This came out in little things. He was overanxious at the table lest the hospitality should come short, troubled about the supply of butter and apple sauce, and soon after I saw him on his knees on the hearth taking care that the fire should catch the wood to abate the evening coolness that was gathering in the room.—From "The Last Leaf" by J. K. Hosmer.

LITTLE STRAWS

IT'S the little straws that shows which way the wind blows. It's the little courtesies we extend our depositors that show the spirit that prevails at the CLEARFIELD NATIONAL BANK. The small depositor is as welcome as the large one.

HOUSEHOLD accounts are objects of particular care with us and we hope the ladies will make full use of our facilities. There are writing and rest rooms solely for their use. There is a teller's window where they can get crisp new bills.

IT is unfortunately true that many women have no reliable source of advice in matters financial. When such is the case, our officers are ever ready to extend the most disinterested counsel. If you will but consult with us, we can relieve you of many cares and much anxiety.

THE CLEARFIELD NATIONAL is fully equipped financially and mentally to deal with any problems of banking finance, foreign exchange, investment, savings and safe deposit.
